Founded in 1966, The Transplantation Society (TTS) is a Non-Governmental Organization (NGO) in official relations with the World Health Organization, and is composed of some 5700+ professionals including but not limited to, physicians, surgeons, scientists and allied health professionals in 106 countries.

TTS is regarded as the only truly international medical society in the field which serves the entire community through its work promoting the advancement and development of both the science and clinical practice of transplantation, through scientific communication, continuing education of its membership and guidance on the ethical practice of transplantation.

Over the past two decades TTS has added ten official sections specializing in various areas of transplantation as well as collaborate with an exceptional group of affiliated societies. This synergistic relationship provides a platform for advocacy, open collaboration and exchange of knowledge and experiences. TTS looks forward to further developing and cultivating these relationships, not only with our existing sections and affiliates, but with other great societies with a similar global vision of transplantation.

ABOUT THE MIDDLE EAST SOCIETY FOR ORGAN TRANSPLANTATION (MESOT)

Mehmet Haberal, Turkey
MESOT Founding President

Mohammad Ghnaimat, Jordan
MESOT President

The Middle East Society for Organ Transplantation (MESOT) is an organization that promotes developments in the field of organ transplantation between medical centers in Middle Eastern, North African and some neighbouring Asian countries. MESOT was founded in Turkey by Professor Mehmet A. Haberal in 1987 and currently its membership spans more than 29 countries covering a population base of more than 600 million.

With the aim of preventing transplant tourism and promoting ethical standards in organ transplantation, MESOT organizes meetings and annual conferences on the improvement of transplantation practices in the Middle-East / Asian region.

The official journal is the Experimental and Clinical Transplantation.
